

Disclosure Statement

I have performed consulting, instructional, and/or research activities for and received compensation from the following international institutions: Asian Development Bank, Bank for International Settlements, European Commission, International Monetary Fund, United Nations, West African Monetary Agency, and World Bank. I give paid lectures and speeches based on my research to the private sector, including the financial services industry, both in the United States and abroad. As an independent academic, I have advised the governments of various countries (including China, India, and the United States) in either informal or formal advisory capacities and do not receive compensation for these activities. I receive compensation for some of my engagements with research activities of certain national central banks. I have been awarded a number of research grants, which are listed on my CV. I have frequent engagements with broadcast and print media. Other than payments for op-ed articles, I do not receive compensation for media-related activities. My investment portfolio consists of broadly diversified mutual funds and I do not actively trade bonds, equities, or currencies. I do not serve on any corporate boards.
